Residual current protective device RCD Type A 3VA9123-0RL30 Type of accessories other, residual current protective device RCD820 advanced RCD Type A mounted below Rated residual current 0.03..30A at 50/60Hz adjustable tv 0...10000ms 3-pole In=160A Ue=100 -690V Accessories for: 3VA2 residual current measuring devices for 3VA molded case circuit breakers. Residual current protection devices can be used to prevent or reduce dangerous residual currents that cause damage to people, property and livestock. These are available as accessory components for the 3VA series. All residual current protection devices detect both purely sinusoidal alternating residual currents and pulsating direct residual currents (type A). These accessory components are characterized above all by: 1. Available as type A (pulse current sensitive). 2. Simple mechanical attachment of the residual current measuring devices directly to the switch. This means very compact dimensions. Siemens offers a comprehensive portfolio of protection, switching, measuring and monitoring devices, distribution systems as well as switches and sockets for the safe, efficient electrical infrastructure in buildings and industry.
