Hand control unit 2x Safeball JSD-TD25P-221200 Number of contacts as normally open 0, Number of contacts as normally closed 0, Number of contacts as changeover 0, Protection class (IP) IP40, Protection class (NEMA) 1, The ABB Safeball is an innovative and ergonomic machine control. It consists of a sphere with two built-in push buttons, one on each side. A slight but clearly noticeable click signals that the pushbuttons have been consciously activated. In order to start or operate a machine, both buttons must be pressed at the same time. If one or more pushbuttons are released, the machine is given a stop command. The ergonomic shape of the Safeball is perfectly adapted to the human hand and thus supports the natural gripping reflex. The Safeball offers a high level of security against manipulation and thus reduces the risk of injury. The simple connection to the AS-i bus and the fact that no cover for the control parts is required make the Safeball flexible to install. ABB Safeballs can be used for either one-handed or two-handed applications. Two-hand controls are used, for example, on presses and semi-automatic machines with manual loading.
