These signals can be used to determine the exact position and time of the connected device. Application examples: ? Time synchronization: Synchronization e.g. B. a church tower clock with UTC time (Coordinated Universal Time). The time is obtained from the GPS signal data. ? Position detection/container tracking: With the help of GPS position data, the path of a container, for example, can be traced. ? Uniform time for all participants in the communication network through synchronization with the satellite time. ? Exact knowledge of the location and movement of the individual devices connected to GPS by evaluating the received signals. ? Integrated, low-noise signal amplifier for reliable evaluation of received data, even with low signal strength. ? Two-stage SAW filter with high attenuation allows the antenna to be placed close to other transmitting units.
